3 Hurt As Car Rams School Bus

26 CHILDREN UNHURT AFTER 30-S MISHAP

Mansfield Woman Loses Eye; Companion and Child, 8, Injured in Crash.

BABY ESCAPES UNHARMED

Patrolmen Say Brakes on Auto Which Ran Into Parked Bus, Were Defective.

Twenty-six pupils in the Springfield township schools luckily escaped injuries yesterday afternoon when an automobile crashed into a school bus on route 30-S two miles west of Mansfield, injuring two Mansfield women and a child, all occupants of the car. A four-months-old baby in the car was not hurt.

It was the third school bus accident in Richland county in less than three weeks. Nine pupils were hurt near Shenandoah Sept. 6 when a truck crashed into a bus, and on Sept. 12 27 pupils escaped injury when another bus was hit by an automobile on route 39.

The sturdy steel construction of the bus probably saved the children from injury or death in yesterday's accident, for the left rear corner of the bus was crushed without damaging a seat inside, state highway patrolmen said. The bus did not turn over.

Injured in the crash were Mrs. Carl Bowman, 19, rear of 207 Harker street, driver of the car; Mrs. Walter Shillito, 23 of 207 Harker street, riding with her, and Mrs. Shillito's daughter, Sally Lou, 5. Mrs. Bowman's four-months-old son, Carl Eugene, riding in a basket on the rear seat, came out of the mishap unharmed.

Mrs. Bowman's right eye was crushed and physicians at General hospital said an operation was performed and the eye was removed.

Mrs. Shillito's nose was fractured and she received lacerations on her head and face and bruises and abrasions on her body. Little Sally Lou Shillito had two cuts on her right arm. None of the three was believed hurt seriously. The two women are in General hospital. The girl was treated and released last night.

Placing of the attractions will transform downtown Fourth street into a carnival ground. Stores and other business places along the street will remain open until 9 p. m.

At the opening ceremonies, talks will be given by Mayor W. J. Locke, James L. Kelly, district WPA manager, and a representative of the state highway department.

3 Parties Ruled Off Ohio Ballot

Communists, Two Other Minority Groups Denied Places.

Three minority political parties failed today to qualify for representation on the Nov. 5 ballots in Ohio. They were the Communist, Socialist and Socialist-Labor, dispatches from Columbus said today.

All lacked sufficient signatures on petitions after names had been checked by the various county boards of election, according to Secretary of State George M. Neffner, who made the ruling after reports had been made to his office by the election boards.

However, one of the signers who asked that his name be taken off the petition, was also disqualified as not being a properly registered elector.

Of 58 Mansfield voters who signed the Communist petitions, 16 were taken off by the secretary of state at the written request of the signers, and nine were declared invalid in the county board of elections because the signers were not qualified electors.

Mansfield signers of the Communist petitions who asked that their names be taken from the list because they had signed under misrepresentation were Charles Miller, 315 Ninth avenue; Pearl Mitten, 33 Blecker street; Rev. C. E. Bankhead, general delivery; Nick Taneff, 248 Bowman street; Thomas Devine and Bessie P. Devine, R. D. 2, Mansfield; Elizabeth Windbigler, John Windbigler, John Windbigler, jr., all of 314 Grace street; Charles Hoffman, 346 High street; Ferdinand Schwaner, 296 Second avenue; Henry Gintter, 250 North Main street; John Voggas, 295 North Main street; Carl Proto, 274 East Second street; Hazel and John Prather, 371 North Mulberry street.

Signers of the petitions who were disqualified, largely because they were not registered voters were Ralph Kendig, 120 East Third street; Avanhelos Zahapolas, Sidney A. Gray, Bernice M. Warren, Howard Lirchner, George Naumoff, John Voggas, Antone Poletis and Barbara Dekrill.

After the lists were checked in Richland county, there were left 33 valid signers on the petitions.

Over the state more than 13,000 signatures on the Communist peti-

GETS 60 DAYS

WPA Worker Sentenced After Hurling Stone at 'Boss.'

A WPA worker who hurled a stone at his superintendent yesterday after he was discharged from the job will have plenty of time to repent.

Arraigned in municipal court this morning, Isaac Lykins, R. D. 1, Shiloh, pleaded innocent to charges of assault and battery and on conviction was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail.

The charges were filed by Samuel P. Peffer, project superintendent on the Fourth street paving job, who told the court Lykins hurled the stone at him hitting him in the head after he had discharged the man for "not working."

The incident occurred yesterday morning near North Mulberry street while Peffer was discussing progress of the street job with Carl H. Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, contractor on the job.

THWARTS LAW

Prisoner Kills Self Rather Than Serve Sentence.

BOWLING GREEN — (AP) — Chester Cooper, 57, Toledo, slit his throat in the Wood county jail rather than serve his fourth prison sentence.

He pleaded guilty yesterday to theft of five chickens and was sentenced one to 15 years in prison. This morning he was found in his jail cell dying of a slashed throat.

Watched As Auto Headed Into Crash With School Bus

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

The seconds tick by like hours when you have to sit by and know an accident is going to happen and you can't do anything about it.

That's the way Eugene Almy, 123 Rae avenue, felt yesterday afternoon as he sat in his car 30 feet from a school bus loaded with 26 boys and girls and saw a car approaching it, knowing there would be a crash endangering a number of lives.

Remembering the state law, Almy, who drives a test car for the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, had stopped behind the bus driven by O. O. Orewiler, 61, west of the city, waiting for three pupils to get out.

While he waited, he looked back and saw another car bearing down on him and the bus. The car, driven by Mrs. Carl Bowman, 19, of Mansfield, just grazed Almy's car, passing on the wrong side, and with a terrific crash collided with the bus.

"I saw that car coming and I knew it would be one of the bus," Almy said last night. "I waited for the crash."

"I couldn't understand what had happened when the car just missed me and sped by on the right, for there was nothing coming from the opposite direction to block the outside lane of traffic," he continued.

Asks Council For $10,000 To Pay City Street Employes

A written request from Mayor William J. Locke for an estimated $10,000 for the purchase of materials and to meet street department payrolls for the balance of 1940 was in the hands of council's finance committee today.

The mayor's three-page communication, in which he points out the financial plight of the department, seeks an estimated $7,000 to meet payrolls for the present staff of 39 employes, and approximately $3,000 for materials, including the purchase of salt for de-icing streets next winter.

Identical letters went out to all three members of the committee. They are Fred Miller, chairman; C. N. Shultz and George Berg.

Locke's request points out that $269 is now due ten employes in the department and that the city is unable to pay them. His letter says that 19 employes were given a payless two-week vacation. They came back to work Monday when the other half of the crew started a similar layoff.

"We have a very serious problem in our street department to provide funds to carry out the great amount of work that is necessary to be done to put our streets in shape for winter," he wrote the committee.

His letter also states that coun-

BERLIN ATTACK HAILED

German Capital Bombed for 4 Hours; Nazis Step Up Pace of War as Reprisal.

BULLETIN

FOLKESTONE, England—(AP)—British Blenheim bombers attacked four armed German ships off the French coast near Boulogne this afternoon and when the smoke cleared away the ships had disappeared and were believed destroyed. An Associated Press observer saw the raid from the English side of the channel.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— Lock gates on the Kiel Canal and railroad communications over a wide area of Germany were attacked last night by British bombers in addition to their main raid on Berlin, the air ministry announced today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Large formations of German bombers and battle planes sped over England like locusts today, twice interrupting morning business activity in battle-scarred London, as the British air ministry announced the greatest raid of the war on Berlin.

The rattle of machine-guns above the clouds, however, indicated the British air force was on tireless patrol. Thames-side anti-aircraft pelted the sky with bursts of hot steel, and both raids on London were of brief duration.

No bombs were heard in the central city during the second raid and the formation of 19 planes which raced over the city in the first was scattered after a brief battle.

Soon after the first wave passed two other formations of 17 bombers each, escorted by about 100 battle planes, were reported on the way up the Thames.

The air ministry said "extensive damage" was done in last night's raid on Berlin, which was described as on a "much larger scale than any yet carrier out."

The ministry said objectives

TRIPLE DEATH

Bodies of Man, 2 Boys Found Along Bronx River Bank.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Death in triplicate—murder and suicide or triple murder—was uncovered on a bank of the Bronx river far up town today.

Under a riverbank tree, a passerby stumbled across the bodies of a man and two boys.

The man was between 30 and 35, the boys about ten or 12 years old. All three were well dressed.

Close to the man's body lay a .38 calibre pistol. In the head of each victim was a single bullet wound. Death was believed to have occurred several days ago.

There was no immediate clue to identity of any of the victims.

British Landing Claimed Halted In West Africa

Advices Claim Cruiser, Submarine Hit by Shells; Observers Say Columns of Smoke Rise From Gibraltar After Bombing

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Reuters (British news agency) said this afternoon it had learned on inquiry in London that "operations at Dakar are now in progress."

(By Associated Press)

VICHY—French forces were said to have repulsed several British attempts to land today at Dakar, French West Africa, and 120 French planes were reported to have struck back at France's former ally with a bombardment of Gibraltar.

Advices from Dakar, capital and chief port of the African colony which Britain is accused of trying to seize, said that one French submarine had been hit by a British shell and that a British cruiser had been hit by a French coastal battery.

This report, reaching here at noon, did not tell whether either of the war vessels was heavily damaged or sunk.

The first casualty reports put the French dead at "more than 100."

There was no immediate official confirmations of the report that French planes had raided Britain's rock fortress at Gibraltar, western gate of the Mediterranean.

(The German radio, in a broadcast heard in New York, quoted French sources last night as saying France had 500 warplanes in Algeria and Morocco which could "bombard Gibraltar for weeks.")

Besides the land defenses at Dakar, French defenses include three cruisers and three destroyers which recently arrived from Toulon, France, and have been prevented by the British from leaving.

French colonial forces were said to have thrown back the British with heavy losses in repelling the main landing attempt at Rufisque beach, just northeast of Dakar, at about 1 a. m.

Government sources said the French were replying to the Brit-

RESIST: French Frontier Troops Retake Post, Report

(By United Press)

HANOI, French Indo-China — French frontier troops, fighting a Japanese invasion from south China, were reported today to have recaptured the border post of Dong Dang, which they were forced to abandon yesterday in the face of overwhelming Japanese superiority.

French resistance was reported also to have stiffened at Langson, important frontier railroad town. The French were reported making a determined stand at Langson and dispatches said that heavy French artillery, shelling from strong cement fortifications at Langson, was taking a heavy toll in Japanese ranks.

Border observers said that Japanese bodies were piled high along roads outside Langson. It was said that the Japanese, lacking time to remove bodies, were cutting off hands for purposes of later identification.

In the coastal region the Japanese were said to have notified the French that they were launching a major attack tomorrow and that Haipohong, Port for Hanoi, would be bombed.

It was said that immediate events depended upon efforts of Maj. Gen. Issaku Nishihara, who headed the Japanese mission which negotiated with the French here for several weeks, to halt the frontier invasion by the Japanese army from South China.

Nishihara sailed from Haiphong aboard a minesweeper this morning for the island of Hainan where, it was reported, he would attempt

NO COMPROMISE: Axis Says War On Britain Won't Relax

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The Axis powers will fight Britain to the bitter end without the slightest compromise, regardless of who may yet rally to her support, authorized German sources said today after the return of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop from his Rome conferences with Premier Mussolini.

There will be no compromise, these quarters added.

Without going into the details of the Rome parley, they characterized the conferences as having included "all the questions necessary for the defeat of Britain."

Not only will there be no compromise, they said, but "the fight against England will be continued on all fronts."

Using a figure of speech taken from dueling, these sources elaborated, saying, "the Rome conversations dealt not only with thrust and parry by principals, but also with all possible activity by actual and potential seconds."

Foreign correspondents understood this to mean chiefly the United States, but authorized sources declined to specify any country.

The Axis powers, it was said authoritatively, are creating a new order that it is the antithesis of the British conception of world domination.

"All European peoples possessing the virility to live are to become equal members in the European community," these sources said.

"The battle for this genial conception already is decided. The new Europe already is in the process of formation. England alone is the enemy of all young, strong, powerful nations.

"To what extent Briton's seconds, who on the whole represent not peoples, but groups with ties to international capitalism, understand this conception is theoretically interesting, but has no political importance whatsoever."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I caught at my husband's arm as he turned back to the veranda door, then flung myself in front of him, grasping his lapels frantically.

"Dicky! You must listen to me!" I told him. "Edith is so near insanity that Miss Whitlock is watching her every second to see that she does not kill herself. She has developed an obsession against seeing anyone save the nurse, and me—and you. Miss Whitlock wants to get her downstairs to my study immediately. Will you come up and carry her down? It won't take you away five minutes—"

"Two have gone by already," he grimly reminded me.

"The nurse and I would do it ourselves," I went on, "but—"

"Don't you dare touch her!" Dicky exploded. "She'd probably try to pull you over the banister. Look here! Is she all ready to go? I can't waste any time waiting for lipstick and powder puff."

I could not help the heady little thrill which swept me at the realization that he would change his stubborn refusal at the mere thought of my possible danger at Edith's hands. But I did not let it delay my answer to him.

"She's all ready," I assured him. "And we shan't need you the minute we get her inside the the study. But——do be careful she doesn't pull you over the banister."

He gave a derisive little laugh, checked it as he caught the anxiety in my face, and stooping kissed me roughly.

"Fat chance of that!" he reassured me as he turned away. "I'll just ask old Harry to take over, and then I'll be right up. But be sure she's ready."

He was gone upon the word, and I stood watching his lithe figure run down the steps as easily as if he were a boy in his teens, wholly forgetting my urgent errand in my love for him.

A faint, quickly stifled, cry from the floor above recalled me to my duty, and galvanized my will—and my muscles—into action. Turning from the door, I sped along the corridor and up the stairs, slowing up only as I reached my own door, and trying to appear composed, for I knew how imperative was the necessity to keep Edith as free from excitement as possible.

There was no sound from behind the door, and as I gave a low rap, I wondered if I might not have imagined that faint cry.

"Come in!" Miss Whitlock called.

I opened the door with infinite caution, and as I came into the room, I decided that my ears had not been at fault, for I found the nurse standing beside Edith, looking down at her, and evidently keeping her recumbent and quiet by sheer force of will. That cry had been stifled by the nurse's palm, I guessed, but she was not quick enough to stop her patient's outburst when she saw me.

"Oh! what did he say?" Edith shrilled. "Will he come up to carry me downstairs?"

Her face was as agitated as her voice, and her eyes were blazing with excitement.

I compelled my voice to matter-of-fact casualness.

"He's coming up at once," I said, and at the words, Edith gave a fervent little cry of joy.

"But he's in a desperate hurry," I cautioned, "and he asks that you be ready."

"Oh! I will! I will!" she promised feverishly, rising from her pillows. But the nurse put her back with a firm hand.

"She's all ready now," Miss Whitlock said, and then Dicky's firm tread sounded in the hall outside, and he knocked sharply on the door.

"It's his step, his knock!" Edith said, her face so lighted that again I turned my eyes away with the feeling that I had no right—or wish—to see that naked and unguarded emotion.

But she was beyond all caring for appearances.

"Hurry! hurry!" she pleaded breathlessly. "Open the door! Let him in!"

HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, Sept. 24th.

Decidedly mixed influences in astrological terminology are observed to make or mar the events of this day, according to the manner in which the conflicting influences are manipulated. There will be great activity in all directions, with all moving under high tempo. The great danger is in over-doing, working in turbulence and impetuosity when calmness, poise, restraint and well-directed effort would help strike a balance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of an exceedingly active and progressive year, with much of major importance accruing which might be jeopardized by rash, impetuous, quarrelsome and overzealous conduct. There may be hostility from higher-ups to be compromised with friendships, and practical support substituted.

A child born on this day should be exceedingly versatile and enterprising, with highly stimulated and brilliant forces and faculties which will take it far in any chosen direction. Its setback might be over-enthusiasm or idealism. It will have a strong social tendency and find much emotional happiness.

IMPROBABILITIES WORK

When it is certain that every probable distribution of the cards would render your contract impossible, your assignment, if you are a true bridger at heart, is to figure out some improbability which at least preserves a remote chance for success. These do not work out often, but the one time at hand may prove to be just the right occasion. Trying for it is better bridge than giving up the ship.

After West took the diamond K and led the A, South saw two sure spade losers, so could not afford one in clubs. Though East's bid marked the club finesse to win, it also proclaimed the virtual impossibility of bringing in a thirteener. The little club might be discarded on a fourth round of spades, however, if the lead could be in dummy at the time. This, however, would require a side entry if the defenders held up their spade honors for the second and third rounds.

Where was that side entry? There was none. Declarer finally saw that one could be built in trumps if either defender held the heart J and 9 only. So he ruffed the second trick with his 10, and palyed two high trumps, being delighted to find East having the hoped-for holding.

The spade J then was taken by West, who returned a diamond, South ruffing with his Q. The spade 8 to the 10 was ducked by East, who then used his A on the spade Q. A diamond return would have been embarrassing here, but East instead led a club, the J winning. Now the heart 6 to the 8, the spade 9 for a club discard and two high clubs completed the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

GALION WOMEN DONATE FUNDS FOR NURSERY

Hospital Auxiliary Plans To Equip Quarters In New Building.

GALION—Galion's new city hospital will have a nursery that will cost approximately $1,500, which will be furnished entirely by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan hospital board. For many years these women have worked tirelessly to raise funds for various needs at the Good Samaritan hospital, and now they have planned the nursery project for the new hospital which is rapidly nearing completion.

As one of the means toward raising funds, a benefit party will be sponsored by the women. Mrs. C. J. Griebling at whose home the first meeting of the fall season was held Monday night, has been named chairman of the committee to plan the benefit party. The tentative date has been set for Thursday night, Oct. 3.

The auxiliary held a steak fry at the Griebling home to launch its fall work season. The business session was held around the camp fire, and during the social hours camp fire songs were sung. Mrs. Harvey Huy presided for business.

The committee named to plan the nursery with the cooperation of the hospital superintendent, Miss Weber, includes Mrs. J. V. Dye, Mrs. John Kidd and Mrs. Curtis Tracht.

Plans were also made for the annual election day dinner, and Mrs. Lowell Cleland was welcomed as a new member.

BREWER HEADS GALION LEGION

Succeeds Gilbert Plack; Fifth District Commander to Install Oct. 14.

GALION — Sam Brewer was elected commander of Scarbrough post, The American Legion, at the annual meeting Monday night in the post rooms. He succeeds Gilbert Plack.

Other officers elected are: first vice president, Ed Syrns; second vice president, Fred Zoller; adjutant, Charles Gelsanliter; finance officer, Clarence Decker; chaplain, L. D. Crissinger; historian, Henry Eichhorn; sergeant-at-arms, Bert Ness; member of the executive committee, Glen Gwinner.

A letter was received from C. I. Kuntz, fifth district commander, that he will come to Galion Oct. 14 to install the new officers.

Brewer gave a report of the national defense program that is being sponsored by the Elks. He is chairman of the Galion program, and he announced a meeting for Oct. 27 at which time he asked a committee from the legion to help. The committee was appointed and is composed of Wayne Dav[illegible], Lawrence Neumann, Glen Gwir[illegible]er and Kels Poister. Three legionnaires that are members of the Elks defense committee are Howard Evans, Charles Gelsanliter and Brewer.

GALION ROTARY LOOKS AT TOWN

Discusses Things That Are Good and Not Good at Monday Session.

GALION—"What Is Good and What Is Not Good About Galion," was the subject of a panel discussion started at Monday night's meeting of the Galion Rotary club. Richard Horn was leader.

The disussion dealt mostly with the things not good about Galion and included the following: need of additional housing facilities; need for a good hotel which is now being planned; need for coordination among civic groups; the better use of leisure time for children because there are now too many on the streets at night; larger degree of co-operation between churches; laxity of parental control and discipline.

Leslie Clippner of Cambridge was introduced by the club president, Dr. O. R. Kackley. A number of years ago he underwent two operations at the Elyria Crippled Children's hospital. For 13 years prior to that time he could get around only on his hands and knees, and following the operations he could walk by the use of braces. He was sent to the home by the Cambridge Rotary club. Clippner expressed his gratitude to all Rotary clubs for their work with crippled children.

60 ATTEND AS LEAGUE STAGES ONTARIO RALLY

Methodist Church Group Has Business Meeting and Social Program.

Sixty young people from Methodist Epworth leagues in Richland county gathered at Ontario Community church Monday night for the Lakeside delegate rally and social program.

More than 30 delegates who attended the Lakeside institute last summer from Methodist churches in the county were present for the affair sponsored by the county committee on camps and institutes.

Charges represented were First and Central churches, Mansfield; Butler - Liberty - Pavonia charge; Pavonia - Olivesburg - Franklin - Adario charge; Shelby and Ontario.

The program opened with a song service led by Rev. Avery Butler of Butler. Several short reviews of the Lakeside institute last summer were given by Miss Jeanne Gatton and George Stoodts of Bellville and John Gray of Shelby.

Highlight of the entertainment was an 'indoor track meet' directed by Miss Rhea Downs, fourth vice department chairman of the county. The "Purdue" team won the meet by a one-point margin over "Ohio University." Judges for the contests held in place of regular track events were Rev. Butler and Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor of First Methodist church, Mansfield.

During a short business session presided over by Wade Pittenger of Mansfield, county president, arrangements were made to hold the annual booth festival early in November. Details for the county festival will be made when the county cabinet of the leagues hold a special meeting later this month.

On the committee that planned the Ontario rally were Miss Downs of Ontario, Miss Batton and Miss Stoodts of Bellville, Miss Betty Rizer and Miss Jean Buell of Mansfield, Miss Eileen Corwin, Miss Marjorie Knapp and Gray, chairman of camps and institute promotion in the county, all of Shelby, and Rev. Butler and Miss Betty Baughman of Butler.

FACE CHARGES IN BURGLARY OF FEED STORE

Inmates Who Escaped Over Wall, Routed by Gun Fire, Held Under $5,000 Bond.

Four Ohio State reformatory inmates who went over the wall under cover of a heavy fog three weeks ago were held in the Holmes county jail today under bonds of $5,000. All are charged with breaking and entering. Three of them are charged with auto theft.

Indicted by the Holmes county grand jury yesterday, they are Arthur Steen, 19, of Wayne county; Frank Smetkowski, 21, of Cuyahoga county; Ernest Hartman, 21, and Walter Splitt, 19, both of Summit county.

Released under $15,000 bond, Baylor is accused in the indictments of false entries and false certificates in the bank accounts.

Object of a widespread search following their escape from the reformatory, the inmates are charged with burglarizing the Sunshine Feed store at Millersburg.

They were routed from the store by gunfire after they stole an automobile in Lucas and fled to Millersburg, later stealing two cars in the small community to make their getaway.

All were captured later and returned to Millersburg.

Hartman and Splitt, who were together when taken into custody near Canton, are accused of the theft of a machine owned by Dr. Luther High. Smetkowski is charged with the theft of a car belonging to Glenn Mast of near Millersburg.

The four employed in the boiler room at the reformatory fled over the wall Aug. 30 during a change of guards

Orders Automatic Signal At Site Of 'Doodlebug' Crash

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— The Pennsylvania railroad was under order of the state utilities commission today to install automatic signals and remote switch control on its tracks between Akron and Hudson, scene of a "Doodlebug" train wreck, or to show cause why it should not be done.

The commission's formal order gave the railroad until Oct. 14 to answer the order. Forty-three persons died in the wreck of the gasoline-powered train on July 31.

Chairman George C. McConnaughey of the utilities commission said failure of man power was the chief cause of the accident. Only three persons on the train, including two trainmen, escaped death.

McConnaughey said an automatic control and switching system would have sidetracked the train and prevented the wreck.

Bricker, Davey Trade Blows on Highways

Up and Down THE STREET

Never let it be said that the Red Cross highway first aid men aren't right on the job. Yesterday afternoon when the auto-school bus crash occurred on Park avenue west road, it happened about a quarter of a mile from one of the Red Cross first aid stations. Arriving at the scene of the accident a few minutes after the crash were five first aid men with equipment. They were Eugene and Urias Shill, Edward Nail, John Durkin, and Leo Snodgrass. All of them live on or near that road. O. O. Orewiler, driver of the bus, was also a Red Cross first aid man and knew how to deal with children suffering from shock and fright. First aid was not required, however, as ambulances arrived at the same time.

Charles Scott, West Fourth street, was somewhat mystified the other day when he went out to his chicken coop to collect eggs. In a nest he found one that was quite smaller than the rest and he suspected that a banty chicken had frequented the place. But the next day when he went to the coop again he found another, this time one about the size of a marble. He then decided that at least one of his Black Giant hens had gone into small scale production.

Cleveland newspapers carried a story today revolving around a former Mansfield man. Rev. Melvin C. Hunt, who was pastor of Central Methodist church for several years. Rev. Hunt is now pastor of the Detroit Avenue Methodist church in Lakewood and Sunday he and members of his congregation had a celebration in which $58,000 in mortgage bonds were burned. The church was built in 1921 and a debt of $111,000 incurred by the congregation. A debt of $58,000 carried over, has been paid off in the last few years.

Mrs. O. D. Fair, Park avenue west, is wondering what to feed a baby squirrel. She recently found a baby fox squirrel that was almost starved and took it to her home. At first, milk had to be forced into its mouth with a medicine dropper, but it soon learned, and now when the dropper full of milk is held near it, the squirrel wraps its forepaws around the glass tube and goes after its dinner as any baby should. Mrs. Fair's only problem is that she thinks that it should have something other than the milk.

In addition to a history of present day civilization, the capsule contains 40 articles of every day use including a woman's hat which should be good for a laugh even in 6939.

ORDERS PATROL HAZING PROBE

Bricker Hears Reports Fellow Students Injured Negro Applicant for Post.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Governor Bricker, it was learned today, has asked the state highway patrol headquarters for a complete statement of reports of mistreatment of a negro student patrolman, Sanford Roan, Columbus, in the patrol's training school.

Roan the only negro who ever won a place among prospective patrolmen training for assignments with the force, was confined to his home suffering from severe cuts, bruises and a slight concussion, received in boxing bouts at the training school.

Last week he submitted his resignation on the grounds that hazing by fellow students had become unbearable. The resignation was withdrawn, however, after a talk with State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler.

Since then word of the boxing affair reached the governor who has ordered Fritz Moritz, assistant superintendent of the patrol, to make a complete report. Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the patrol, has been confined to a hospital with influenza for several days.

Roan, it was understood, had informed the governor's office that when he boxed each of his opponents tried to make a fight of their bouts. Finally when he was nearly exhausted, Roan who weighs 175 pounds, said he was matched against a 200-pound opponent who beat him severely. It also was reported that at the gymnasium his gym shoes had been removed and he was forced to wear street shoes which handicapped his fighting.

EACH ATTACKS OTHER'S RECORD ON PAVEMENTS

Governor Recalls 'Hot Mix' Scandal; Rival Blasts at 'Cement Trust.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Each of Ohio's major party gubernatorial nominees sought today to pave the road to re-election with criticism of the other's highway administration.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democrat, declared that "another two years of the present administration would mean that our highway system would be almost completely wrecked."

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, replied that during Davey's administration highway costs were excessive and that the highway department was "at its lowest ebb in history" when Davey left office.

Both candidates spoke over state-wide radio networks last night, Bricker from Canton and Davey from Columbus.

Bricker charged that the Davey administration paid $1.96 a cubic yard more for "hot mix" road surfacing material than the state now pays and that under Davey Ohio failed to receive $16,000,000 in federal road funds because highway standards were "not acceptable" to the federal government.

The governor also charged that Davey's administration permitted "pre-arrangement among bidders as to who would secure awards of hot mix projects."

Davey countered that criticism about "hot mix" purchases while he was governor were "started, managed and financed" by the "cement trust," which, he asserted, has the present highway department "by the throat."

He said hot mix bituminous material was used extensively during his administration "to save the enormous investment of the old pavements which were badly worn out and too narrow." Replacement of these old roads would have cost $50,000 to $100,000 a mile, he added.

"In the past twenty months, we have suffered from the worst neglect and mismanagement of the great highway system of Ohio than could be measured by any standard," Davey said.

He charged that lack of proper highway maintenance last winter caused more than $10,000,000 damage.

Movie Star Says Armed Preparation Essential To U. S.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — James Stewart, boyish, serious-minded movie star, thinks that armed preparation is essential even though the U. S. doesn't want war.

"I don't want America to have a war. I don't want anyone to have a war," he told 9,565 persons in Cleveland's public hall last night.

"But it seems there are countries which didn't want war, either, but which had no choice in the matter—and the reason for that appears to be that they weren't prepared. I'm for being prepared."

Stewart pointed out he was 32 and single and knew how to fly a plane "so I guess nobody can accuse me of talking about an army somebody else is going to be in."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

Dear Diary: To me, the most fascinating thing in town these days is not the seals in Central park, not the Chrysler spire, not Mayor La Guardia's automobile, but the situation of the Six Characters in Search of An Author.

By this I refer to the romantic plot involving as principals Arline Judge, James McKinley Bryant, Elaine Shepard, Al Bloomingdale, Ann St. George, and Huntington Hartford, which is like a Noel Coward plot except that it is more confusing, like a Saroyan plot. Actually, no playwright would juggle these characters around the way they are juggling themselves, because it would tax the credibility of an audience and the customers would leave the theater saying, "Oh, really, people don't act like that!"

The situation began months ago when James McKinley Bryant and Arline Judge were reported married in Louisville, Ky., while attending a horse race in that city, but the headlined nuptials turned out to be a prank.

Then they returned to Manhattan and Arline began going with Huntington Hartford, the chain grocery store heir, who had been paying a great deal of attention to Ann St. George Thompson (ex-wife of Alexis Thompson, the drug products heir)—and Ann began going places with James McKinley Bryant.

At the time it was rumored—and never denied—that Arline Judge was on the verge of rhumba-ing to the altar with Hartford, and that Ann Thompson would probably be Jimmy Bryant's next.

Then the plot thickened like a London fog. Suddenly, two other principals stepped into the cast, as well as a couple of subordinate characters. Al Bloomingdale, of the department store family, had been spending most of his evenings with Patricia "Honeychile" Wilder, but that romance terminated abruptly one evening and Honeychile drifted swiftly into the alert ken of Alexis Thompson (Ann's "ex"). First thing the fascinated observers knew, young Bloomingdale was turning up at the Stork club with Arline Judge. And Jimmy Bryant had met Elaine Shepard, a beautiful model, and he was turning up with her.

Well, all this, if you can take it chronologically and in stride, is pretty clear. Or, rather, it WAS clear.

But this week—this gala week, full of openings and Dazzling Names—the Six Characters began to switch partners. All over town, people were doing double-takes when one of the Six made an entrance into a night club with the wrong Other One.

Anyone's capacity for ubiquity goes only so far, but I can report the score for the week as I observed it.

Saturday night: At the Riviera, Arline Judge with Huntington Hartford.

Tuesday night: At the Stork club, James McKinley Bryant with Elaine Shepard, Huntington Hartford with Ann St. George Thompson, Arline Judge with a large party.

Thursday night: At the Club Cuba opening, James McKinley Bryant with Ann St. George Thompson, Arline Judge with Al Bloomingdale.

All this is leading some of the local wags to start a pari-mutuel system for cafe use. You sit in the Stork club and bet that when Arline Judge comes in it will be with Huntington, James, or Al, naming your own odds.

It's more fun than Chinese checkers.

Monday night an assortment of musical comedy stars made the Savoy-Plaza lounge look gay while Hildegarde sang.

Ethel Merman was with William Gaxton and his wife, and the newlywed Arthur Treachers. At another table, Al Jolson sat among a bevy of chorines and showgirls—but Al, no matter how happy he looks, never forgets that old torch he's carrying for Ruby Keeler. After Hildegarde had sung songs from "Hold On to your Hats," Al asked for a special favor. Would she please sing a number called "I'll Be Seeing You?" Hildegarde scurried through her music case, found the number and sang the sentimental ballad.

It was, Jolson confided, a song he and Ruby had heard Hildegarde sing several years ago, and Ruby had liked it.

The Club Cuba formerly the 9 O'Clock, opened last Thursday night and by half after midnight you couldn't have squeezed a Singer midget into the room. The decor has been changed to an effect of wild Latin murals on three walls, and one Forgotten Wall by the bar. The music is the loudest rhumba music these ears have ever heard. The ceiling is low and blue. The people seemed to love it, and I suppose it will become a favorite East Side hideout for those who like to swing their hips to the music of the maracas.

Ann St. George Thompson, with J. McK. Bryant, looked chic in a black lace dinner dress and a black velvet hair-bow. . . . Al Jolson, accompanied by Joan Marshall, peeked in at the crowd and ducked out again. . . . The George Lowthers arrived with Arline Judge and Al Bloomingdale, making a riot of color if nothing else, since Arline was wearing a bright orange evening coat and Mrs. Lowther (Eileen Herrick) a bright red jacket. . . . Bill Plankington was with Virginia Moore, who once was reported to have been married, briefly, to McClelland Barclay, and Milton Berle, attired in a Lord Byron shirt, danced with Joyce Matthews for what I believe was the fourth night in a row.

Mr. Huntington Hartford was one of the Six Characters not present, as was Elaine Shepard. Or maybe they came in after I left—together.

Henke Ready For Service

Tyger Fullback's Knee Injury Is Not Serious.

Mansfield high gridders had a new spirit today as they resumed practice for the Elyria high football machine at Stadium field Friday night.

The gloom lifted from the Tyger camp when it was learned that Martin Henke, regular fullback, would be available for duty against the touted Elyria team.

Mentor Paul Snyder is working to develop a strong pass defense and brush up the blocking of the varsity members for he believes his athletes will have to be at their best to halt the Elyria outfit.

Armstrong finished off Challenger Phil Furr of Washington in 1:45 of the fourth round of a scheduled 15-round title bout last night. A looping right to the head put Furr down for the count of 10 for the first time in 10 years of professional fighting.

ST. HELENA, Calif. —(AP)— Joe Simonoich, 68-year-old inventor, has built a bombproof cellar that travels. PROFIT SELLING HALTS RALLYING SWING IN MART

Wall Street Still Leans Toward Bullish Side; European Developments Better.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Profit selling interrupted the rallying swing of the stock market today although Wall Street still leaned toward the bullish side.

European war developments and home business news were viewed as encouraging, but the fact the market had more than cancelled the decline which started last May apparently caused some traders to step aside pending a possible technical reaction.

Securities at London remained steady. Bonds and commodities were a trifle uneven. Some industrial staples, particularly copper, were boosted.

Stocks inclined to back away occasionally included Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, American Locomotive Preferred, Dupont, Eastman Kodak, Western Union and N. Y. Central.

A favorable indicator was seen in the lift of the spot copper price of ½ cent a pound to 12 cents, equalling the year's peak level established last January.

A constructive market interpretation was placed on Federal Reserve figures disclosing another increase in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans.

For the week ended Sept. 18 member banks in 101 cities reported an upturn in this item of $7,000,000 over the preceding week.

Secretary Morgenthau announced that the treasury would refund $737,000,000 of 1½ per cent notes due Dec. 15, offering holders on Sept. 25 an opportunity to exchange their notes for government bonds.

FRENCH RE-TAKE 'INDO' POST

Claim Japs Being Met With Stiff Opposition on Border.

to persuade Gen. Ando, commanding the Japanese army in South China, to hold up his attack across the frontier.

Early this morning 12 Japanese bombers made a demonstration flight over Haipong but no bombs were dropped.

Japanese have bombed Langson twice and are bombarding it heavily with field artillery, dispatches said

French authorities insisted that the Japanese had been responsible for the frontier fighting.

Japs Claim Border Fight Concluded

TOKYO—(ONS)—All French resistance in Indo-China has been "crushed" as a result of an "unavoidable" military action, a Japanese government communique announced today.

"Japan has not the slightest intention of occupying an inch of French-Indo-China territory," the announcement added.

No mention of any further fighting was contained in the communique, which said French losses amounted to more than 131 killed while Japanese losses were described as extremely slight.

A later army communique reported everything "quiet on the northern Indo-China front," and said that 100 French troops killed in a skirmish at Dong Dang were buried by the Japanese.

A Domei (Japanese news agency) report said the dead included Lieut.-Col. Loubert, commander of the garrison. They were buried by Japanese soldiers, who "regarded them as victims of an unfortunate accident rather than enemies," Domei said.

CHAPTER XXVII

Carol passed a hand over her eyes. When the tear-mist cleared, she read on:

If I try to explain myself, Carol, I'll get mixed up and sorry for myself and you'll be sorry for me. I don't want that. I've been wrong about life and people, thwarted, with kinks in my character. You've been wrong about me, thinking I was something I wasn't. But I've never been wrong about you. And all I ask of you now, all I hope for, is that you won't think too badly of me and that you won't be ashamed for having loved me for two years. The best of me went into loving you, but I fooled you. Mainly, I think, I fooled myself and cheated myself. I have Edwina and Mr. Hartley to thank for knowing that it should go without saying how ashamed I am and how grateful I am to them.

Until tonight I thought I was a person standing alone, fighting alone, fighting everything and everybody that had hurt me when I was young and poor, and Edwina made me the laughing stock of Newton. But tonight I realize that I'd been loved by Mr. Hartley, your father and you . . . and that the girl who made me a laughing stock was a staunch friend with a better mind and a greater courage than mine.

And so the money I was going to use for our home will be given back to Mr. Hartley. He told me last night that he didn't want it back now: that the money itself was unimportant. But I'm going to pay it back. And he agreed to have his will changed, leaving his property and money to charity and old friends and neighbors instead of to me.

And where does that leave me, Carol? Free—free for the first time since I began this ghastly thing. Free—you've no idea how it feels not to be a thief any more. The feeling spoiled things between us more than you will ever know.

It leaves you free, too. I release you from your promise to marry me because I'm going away—where, I don't know yet but far away from Newton. I could stay—I'm not being driven away—and go on with my work. But I don't think I could take the pats on the back from people who think I'm good political material or stand in a court of justice. I've always been very serious about the law.

And I release you from your promise because Edwina told me about Norman Alexander and so I can't do anything except accept defeat from you as graciously as possible and wish you all hapiness. Oddly enough, I'm not very much hurt, perhaps because I've hurt myself so much and others and it's so good to be free.

Have I said it all, I wonder? I'm tired all over and I can't think well. Give your father my thanks and my best wishes. He was a tower of strength tonight. Human life, even the life of a blind man past eighty, is precious to him. I've learned a lot tonight. I'll never hurt myself or any one else again and I know that people are not my enemies but my friends . . . And I can think about my mother now and not push the thought of her away from me.

God bless you, dear, lovely, Carol, Alan.

The letter was still in her hand when her father knocked and came in. He came to her, took the letter from her and read it slowly. Then, folding it, he turned to her and his smile was an amused reproach.

"This throws a new light on the situation. You and young Alexander . . . But come down to breakfast, dear. And this letter is Alan's vindication. How close we can be to people and not know them at all . . . a superficial closeness. I approve of his going away. Good for him. He'll throw off the shackles of shame and regret. He'll find himself again. But he's a good lad who has already found himself, don't you think?"

"Edwina has gone, too. I telephoned her house. She went to New York this morning." Turning to her father, Carol met his mild blue eyes directly. "My heart turned over when I read Alan's letter. I wanted to call him back and tell him I'd try to be what I meant to be to him before all this happened." She smiled. "I don't know whether I'm happy or sad."

"You're happy and enormously relieved. And you're going away, too. Away from this house and me and Newton. But not to young Alexander . . . What is his name?"

"Norman . . ."

He chuckled. "But not to Norman—not yet. No girl wants to get up out of a mud puddle and go to her lover. And no girl wants to go from a funeral to her lover. That wouldn't be wise, you see. You don't want to go from yesterday to Norman. Love can wait and it's better for the waiting. Your body and your heart and your mind are sick. Repair them and then go."

Postpone it . . . live down yesterday and leave weariness and sadness and pity for Alan . . .

"Your advice is always sound. I'll call Ann Kirkness in Baltimore. I believe she's getting her vacation around this time . . ."

"Good. She's just the person for you." He chuckled again. "Norman Alexander will keep, you know. He seemed pretty sturdy to me. But you've been holding out on me about him . . . When did it begin? Remember there's nothing any one likes more than a love story. But at the moment, if you don't mind, dear, your father would like his breakfast and I'm sure Rosie is fussing about the delay . . ."

"Just one thing more," Carol said.

Her ring from Alan . . . Going to her dressing table, she picked it up and put it in the palm of his hand and closed his fingers over it.

"Alan forgot to mention this. Will you put it in a safe place and when and if he comes back, send it to him, or better still, take it to him?"

Ann Kirkness, Carol was informed, was in Boston visiting her family. Carol telephoned Boston and heard Ann's cheerful voice say that she planned to spend only a week of her vacation with her family, a week almost gone, and that for the remainder she was going to an inn in the Pennsylvania mountains where she would join Carol. It was inexpensive, the scenery lovely and she was certain Carol would love the place.

Another call at the inn assured her of a room, and clothes hastily pressed and packed, she was on the train that afternoon idly turning the pages of a magazine her father had put in her hand at the last minute. She stared dreamily at the countryside where an occasional frost-tipped leaf had turned to red or gold.

From her room in Tuscany Inn, Carol could see the mountains rise out of the morning mist and stand clear and majestic until the evening mist obscured them. Only late vacationists were at the inn, a large white graceful structure, which stood on the edge of a golf course, and Carol found them to be quiet, well-mannered people seeking rest and recreation, and totally unlike the typical summer tourists with a vocal questionnaire for each new guest.

Until Ann came, Carol was a girl alone. She ate alone at the small corner table and walked alone along the mountain paths in the early morning and before dark returning to her cheerful room to sleep long and soundly while the crisp air sent the chintz curtains billowing. Neither the tennis courts nor the swimming pool nor the library tempted her. When she awoke in the morning, she wanted to be out, wearing a sweater and skirt and sensible shoes, walking against the brisk wind. Autumn had come early to the mountains; the forest was vivid with color and the frost in the morning necessitated the lighting of a fire in the huge stone fireplace on the first floor lounge of the inn.

She was like one convalescing, she thought on the third morning as she walked. Her father had known that; it was as a patient that he had treated her when he sent her away. Last night she had wired him: "Patient much better. Walked five miles today . . .

Ann, small and dark and vivacious and wearing smart tweeds, burst in upon her one morning while she was still asleep and, flinging off her hat and gloves, awoke her with a hearty kiss.

"Darling, how I rushed to get here! I'm positively dead! Never take a vacation with your family if you expect to get any rest. Parties and dinners and Aunt Sophie's new baby and Uncle Joe's passion for table tennis. They've had no compassion for a nurse's aching feet! What have you been doing? Are there any attractive men in the place? I hope not. My summer romances always turn out to be winter bores and problems. How do you like the place? Do you wonder that when I sneak away I sneak away here?"

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I never suspected it before, but Edgar Kennedy is really burning. Slowly, as usual, but surely.

Edgar was sitting on the sidelines of "The Quarterback" set, burning in lonely, unnoticed brilliance, and he was talking. Nobody could see the burn. All you saw was the ordinary Kennedy face, plain and open, that you see on the screen; above it, the growing baldness which is as familiar as the face.

"You know," Edgar began, "when I do that burn I'm really burning—I get sick of their making me do it."

Edgar's secret desire, his hope of escape from that gesture which made him famous, that slapping himself on the brow and wiping his face in exasperation, is to play heavies. Heavies burn, but they can do it differently. They can twirl moustachios, for instance, if they have moustachios—but Edgar, here, hasn't even a toupee.

Well, how'd the "slow burn" stuff start, Pagliacci?

This way: He'd been looking for movie jobs and asking and asking at casting offices, and all he'd heard was "Nothing today." He heard it so much one day that he burned. He slapped his brow, wiped his face slowly, shook with helpless rage.

And the caster cried: "Do that in a picture and we'll get you something sure!"

It did get him something, a job as a Keystone Kop and a chance to "slow burn" from that time on.

At that point in Edgar's recital came a voice from the set: "Ed, we're ready for you—this is where you get in there and burn up."

Edgar did a typical slow burn, very impressive, and walked on. "See?" he said, or words to that effect which had best not be carried here.

In the musicycle the band leadersare flocking to roosts in Hollywood. Kay Kyser is here for "You'll Find Out," and Artie Shaw is in "Second Chorus" with Fred Astaire and Paulette Goddard. Roger Pryor is in "Glamour for Sale" with Anita Louise, and talks of giving up orchestra-touring forever to be here with Ann Southern. Charles (Buddy) Rogers has a movie deal in prospect, while Orrin Tucker (and Bonnie Baker) dropped in to talk over their new musical, "You're the One." . . . And that's to say nothing of Astaire, who in "Second Chorus" leads an orchestra by tap-dancing, or of Albert Dekker, who is to play at orchestra-leading in "You're the One." . . .

John Barrymore, even at this late date, still can rhapsodize over the fine qualities of a landlady during his early New York days, to wit: "A marvelous woman, truly. . . . Never asked for a cent. . . . And inasmuch as she never did, I always paid her on the nail—when I had money." . . . Isn't there somewhere in that a tip for the Barrymore creditors — for whom he says he made "The Great Profile?"

Its Central Executive committee, in extra-ordinary meeting, ended the organization in preparation for its members' participation in the national movement for industrial service to the state.

The dissolution of the federation, which was established in 1911, is another step of the Japanese people to assist the government and military to push the China incident to a successful conclusion.

BRICKER'S BETRAYAL OF THE SCHOOLS

When Martin L. Davey became Governor of this State, hundreds of schools were closed down tight. A financial crisis had overwhelmed the public school system of Ohio, because of the ten-mill limitation that had been passed in 1933, and which took effect in the fall of 1934.

Martin L. Davey

This was one of the many gigantic, new problems that faced Governor Davey, but he did not flinch. He led the fight for the great Public School Foundation Law, under which the school children in all parts of the State are guaranteed equal education.

Under the terms of this law, Ohio provides, nearly $50,000,000.00 a year, so that the schools may stay open. This never had been an obligation of the State government, but it was made so under the Davey administration.

When this Foundation School Law was passed, early in 1935, the local school boards had accumulated a deficit in operating expenses of nearly $6,000,000.00.

The State revenues were ample during the balance of 1935 and all of 1936 and 1937. The bad business conditions of 1938 caused a serious shrinkage in all State revenues. The result was an additional deficit of over $5,000,000.00 making a total actual deficit of $11,000,000.00.

Governor Davey left a balance of six and a half million dollars in the public school fund. Governor Bricker robbed the school fund of this six and a half million, and put it into his general revenue fund, thereby boosting the local school deficit to seventeen and a half million. He did it without authority of law, at the time.

His action in robbing the public school fund of this six and a half million dollars, which had been pledged by prior law to the payment of outstanding notes, was one of the most immoral public acts in the history of this commonwealth.

Bricker has betrayed the schools. He robbed the Public School Fund of six and a half million dollars. But he claims to have paid $5,000,000.00 on the School Fund Deficit. He prevaricates. He has paid only slightly over $2,000,000.00. He has taken the other million dollars, and used it for other purposes.

He amended the law to make the local school districts pay their own tuition fees to adjoining districts. This cost the schools $400,000.00.

The Irreducible Debt Fund, which has always been paid back to the local school districts, since Ohio has been a State, Bricker kept from them and held it as State money. He robbed the local school districts of another $258,000.00 by this illegal procedure.

The Davey Foundation School Law still stands as a monument to his administration, but it is being administered badly by the present sanctimonious Governor, who chisels on the schools, just as he does on relief people, and old age pensioners, and those who receive unemployment insurance, and the poorly - paid Highway laborers, and all others.

Bricker had $80,000,000.00 more State revenues in 1939, than Davey did in 1938. And yet he chisels on the poor and helpless people and institutions.

Bricker's false and sanctimonious claims are a hollow mockery, and intellectually dishonest.

Vote Against Sanctimonious Hypocrisy. Give the Schools a Square Deal. Vote For Intellectual Honesty.

START BUILDING AIRPORT PARK IN THREE WEEKS

NYA Officials Announce Plan To Construct Recreation Grounds on Route 13.

Construction of a state roadside park at the municipal airport will be started within the next three weeks, National Youth administration officials announced today.

Construction of the park, which will be located on the route 13 frontage of the port, will get under way as soon as NYA youth employed on a similar project at Charles Mill reservoir can be transferred, L. C. Roesner, sub-area supervisor said.

Although it was planned to start work next Tuesday, Roesner said it may be Sept. 15 before actual construction gets under way. Some work is yet to be done on the Charles Mill site before operations are suspended, he said.

Development of the airport park will involve the expenditure of $8,054, of which the state highway department will provide $4,364 for materials and supervision, the balance of the cost being furnished by the government agency for labor.

The project is set up to provide 50 Richland county youths with employment for four months. Roesner said it is possible that the working force may be doubled to complete the park before winter.

The proposal calls for the development of nearly four acres of the port property near the north entrance of the field. It provides for landscaping and grading a parking lot to provide parking for about 200 automobiles.

Construction includes three large shelter houses with 10 picnic tables, four brick fireplaces, a well and well shelter, two sanitary units, 1,300 feet of post and rail fence and 800 feet of guard rail.

In addition, there will be 85 shrub type trees planted.

The park project is in addition to a $40,000 improvement program planned by NYA for developing and improving runways and constructing an administration building at the airport.

UP 16 PER CENT

Richland Sales Tax Receipts Above State Average.

While the state was showing an average gain of 11.7 per cent in sales tax receipts for the first eight months of the year, collections in Richland county were up 16 per cent, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright had reported today.

Although there was a decline of about $400 in the Richland county receipts for the first week of September as compared to the corresponding week last year, collections in the county so far in 1940 are $54,460 ahead of the 1939 figures.

The state treasurer's figures showed that $389,546 has been collected so far this year in the county, while receipts at the same time last year totaled $335,086.

Recommendations for the election of seven new directors of the Kiwanis club to serve a two-year period will be made by the nominating committee at the club's weekly meeting Thursday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Those selected for nomination by the committee are William F. Black, Edward Dann, Ben Goodenough, Charles Harding, James Hoffman, William S. Ross, and Herbert Schettler.

Additional nominations may be made from the floor if seconded by two members, a bulletin issued by the club said today. Those who receive the highest number of votes will be elected to the board.

Actual voting on the seven directors will take place Thursday, Oct. 3, after which the newly-elected directors and the eight carry-overs will meet Tuesday, Oct. 8, for election of officers for the coming year.

Dr. A. O. Fonksalrud, superintendent of the Mansfield General hospital, will speak to the club Thursday on "Your Hospital." Dr. Carl Damron is chairman of the Thursday meeting.

The nominating committee is composed of Dwight P. Smith, chairman, and Fred Cahall, Earl McFarland, Fred B. Wolff, and Milo Hieber.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1940.

Evidencing campaign interest, John T. Flynn's "Country Squire In the White House" tops the list of non-fiction best sellers.

Germans claim that Colorado potato bugs are being dropped on their fields by British airmen—but Colorado reports none missing.

By this time the campus cut-ups who were gulping goldfish a year ago should have found some other way to evidence their capacity for self government.

Another School Bus Crash

ANOTHER of the too-frequent "accidents" involving a school bus occurred on the Park avenue west road just west of Mansfield yesterday afternoon.

Fortunately modern school buses are of sufficiently sturdy construction to withstand a considerable impact without likelihood of killing or seriously injuring any of the occupants.

This was evidenced in the yesterday afternoon crash when the bus escaped with minor damage while the passenger car that plowed into it from the rear was reduced to a mass of wreckage.

It cannot be depended upon, however, that in all such occurrences children in the school bus will escape uninjured, as was the case yesterday, and the extent of unsafe driving on public highways continues as a matter of deep concern to parents of school children who are required to use this form of transportation.

While the state law is clear and firm in the matter of motorists' responsibility to stop for school buses that are either taking on or unloading passengers, the fact remains that approaching cars must be under sufficient control to be stopped at the prescribed distance or the law becomes ineffectual in preventing accidents.

This means that reasonable speed is an important factor: that constant attention is demanded of the driver, and that brakes must be kept in good condition at all times.

Three Richland county accidents to school buses within the past few weeks points to the need of greater care on the part of motorists, also to stricter enforcement of speed limits and a more drastic attitude in the matter of revoking or suspending drivers' licenses in cases of conviction for unsafe, reckless or drunken driving.

Industry's Part In Defense

WHEN the American industrial machine begins to roll on a mass production basis in behalf of national defense, few doubt that it will show the world something new in military mechanical might. Tanks, airplanes, cannon, armaments of all kinds and varieties, will come off the assembly lines faster than men can be trained to operate them.

However, there are stumbling blocks in the path of industry today that did not exist during World war I. They are not problems of invention and production technique which can be grappled with in laboratory and office. They are the result of too much law-making. Industry is wrapped in red tape as never before. Virtually every operation falls under the surveillance of some commission, committee or tax bureau. Whole departments, costly in the extreme, are maintained by every sizable enterprise solely to compile data required by national and local units of government.

Industry is proceeding with national defense, however, in spite of artificial handicaps. Managements are going ahead with expansion plans running into tens of millions of dollars. In return they are asking co-operation from government to the extent of writing off inevitable losses against taxes in the event that plant expansion programs are unsupported by armament demands.

Every step that can be taken to protect and encourage industry during this critical period should be taken. Punitive political attack for the sake of votes should cease. Bankrupt industries are of no benefit to labor, the public or anyone else.

Debt Problems of Draftees

WHILE the first call for trainees under the conscription act will apply almost entirely to unmarried young men, presumably without serious debt problems, congress is expected to take action in relieving drafted men and national guardsmen of financial worries during their year of training.

Some will have insurance premiums coming due, others may be obligated to make payments on homes or for articles bought on time payments. The $30 a month which they are to receive will not be sufficient to meet such requirements and it will be quite proper for congress to act, within reason, in deferring payments until trainees and guardsmen return to regular employment.

One plan proposed in congress is to meet the trainee's commitments during his year of service, requiring him to repay the entire amount in the following year, but the next year might offer difficulties in readjustment to regular earnings and such a plan may require further liberalization.

Although this action may appear as a further step toward paternalism in government, the unusual circumstances under which young men will be called into military service makes it a matter of simple justice that they should not also be required to suffer heavy financial penalties through no fault of their own.

Trend Away From Big Cities

LOSS in population during the past decade, as revealed by the recent census, has been disturbing a number of cities.

The International City Managers' association has been trying to learn the causes of this dropoff. Listed as chief deterrents to continued growth of cities are: High taxes, excessive tax valuations, traffic congestion, lack of city planning, outdated building codes, cramped business areas and improper subdivision platting.

These are reasonable conclusions, but there is also the prevalence of automobiles, making it possible for city workers to live in the country, and gradual decentralization of industry, which seems likely to show an increase during the next ten years.

There is also the question, of course, as to whether continued emphasis on further growth of large cities is desirable—at least until they are able to sustain present populations without calling for state and federal aid in meeting their relief problems.

It may even develop, within another decade or two, that suburban or rural residence, with products of farm or garden supplementing urban income, will be preferred by an increasing number of American families.

WHAT'S HOLDING US BACK?

Listen, World!

Get a Grip on That Smog!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'VE coined an odd expression in Pittsburgh. But before we go into that, you can take it from me that all this talk about Pittsburgh being the ugliest and dirtiest city in America is malicious bunk—and nothing else but. If any city in America has a nobler site or more dramatic vistas, I've yet to see it. Excepting, of course, forever 'n' ever, my San Francisco!

Did you see the "Futurama" at New York's World Fair, that inspired miracle in clay which shows the America of tomorrow in miniature? Pittsburgh made me think of that, looking down at it from the heights above, seeing, in one glorious gasp, that intricate network of rails and bridge spans, caught in the circling waters — the terraced slopes, the arched immensity of sky, the long colonnades of chimneys binding them all together, earth to air, wave to star, with the splendor of it dissolving and emerging through mingled gleam and gloom.

Did you hear a snarl, a long, low, vicious snarl? You did. That "gleam and gloom" stuff is responsible. For if there's one thing that will rouse the primordial beast in a Pittsburgher, it's any reference to his city's particular and peculiar brand of climate. Hence the snarl. Also, hence that odd expression which I mentioned in the beginning—"smog."

What on earth is "smog?" It's that mixture of smoke and fog which is the Pittsburgher's pet goat-getter. Personally, I can't see why all the shouting. They should see OUR fogs out in San Francisco. We don't snarl at 'em—we set them to music and keep the copyright. But, even though I can't share their sobs, I do believe they've got something in that name, "Smog" — there's a term that certainly fits these troubled times.

"Smog"—mixture of smoke and mist, dust and grit. You don't need to go to Pittsburgh to find it. You can see its mental equivalent in every place and person in these United States, for we're all chuck full of various mixtures and moods which make a simple little thing like soot look like new fallen snow.

Take equal parts of fear, fury, hate, worry, bewilderment, doubt and indecision, shake well inside any average cranium and you'll have as pretty a start for a padded cell as ever needed a keeper. Yet that's exactly the condition in which most of us find ourselves these days.

Uncontrolled emotions — they can raise more kinds of hell than the Devil himself ever dreamed of. A fact which Herr Hitler understands perfectly, as evidenced in his "War of Nerves." Scream bombs, motorized units, Stuka divers—they're just kid stuff compared with mental and spiritual "smog."

And the worst part of it is that we, ourselves, don't understand the full viciousness of such moods. We think that we, alone, are the victims, but actually we spread the infection of our depression to everyone we meet. Then they also spread the blight in an ever widening circle of misery. Talk about a blitzkrieg! It can't touch the destruction wrought by one good fit of hysteria.

If you want to serve your country—and save your own sanity—get control of that "smog." Nothing in our whole defense program is more essential than individual coolness and self-control.

We don't tell whether the Nazis will attack us, or what harm they might do if they did. But it's a cinch that we are demoralizing ourselves—and plenty, every time we "let our feelings run away with us." We need guns, ships, planes, trained men. But before and above all these we need courage and coolness in ourselves — insulated minds and fortified hearts.

And a padlock on many a tongue!

THE CITIZEN WHO LETS HIS EMOTIONS RUN AMUCK THESE DAYS IS AS TRULY A TRAITOR AND SABOTEUR AS THE MOST VICIOUS ENEMY ALIEN.

TODAY IN HISTORY

John Marshall, the most famous jurist and master of constitutional law in American history, was born on Sept. 24, 1755. He was appointed Chief Justice of the United States supreme court in 1800.

Timely Editorial

Home Defense Corps.

Mobilization of the National Guard for a year's training will mean that many states will be without any military force for protection or use in an emergency.

Organizations of home defense units is being considered throughout the country. There is no reason why such units could not be formed without difficulty.

The American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars could handily form the nucleus of such units. Because of age and other limitations the majority of the veterans of the World war are not available for army service, but most of them would be willing to serve in the home units. They have the necessary experience and training to make them readily adaptable for this service.

The American Legion has a membership in excess of 1,000,000, and there is scarcely a town of any size throughout the country that does not have a Legion post of from 25 to 75 members, while in larger places they are numbered by the thousands. — Ohio State Journal.

This Is Ohio

FEW stories in Ohio history have touched sympathetic hearts more profoundly than that of Herman Blennerhasset and his wife, Margaret.

In the fall of 1797 they arrived in New York from England and that winter journeyed to Marietta to locate a site for a western home. They selected an island in the Ohio river which had originally belonged to General Washington.

They built an imposing mansion which they occupied in 1800. "It was built," says Dr. Hildreth, the historian, "with great taste and beauty, no expense being spared in its construction." Until April, 1805, when Aaron Burr first visited the island, this home was the center of hospitality and refinement. In 1811 the mansion was destroyed by fire. Today the site is marked by a few stones from the gateway and a large sycamore tree growing out of the wine cellar.

Hints on Etiquette

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Not unless it was 25 cents or under.
2. A lobby means persons not members of a legislative body who try to influence legislature, a bloc is a group of legislators organized to influence legislation.
3. Washington, Madison, Jackson, Polk, Buchanan and Harding.

As Others See It

Looking Ahead.

It is said that Mr. Roosevelt doesn't want a fourth term. But if the question should come up he might be drafted again and forced to run.—Kansas City Star.

Sounds Reasonable.

Bad Weather May Block Invasion But Bombing of London Continues

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Although the status of the Battle of Britain remains difficult to estimate, diplomatic cables have pieced together a general picture which can be summarized as follows:

1. Bad weather in the English Channel may prevent any invasion of England by troops this year. Another important factor is the havoc wreaked upon Nazi barges in French and Belgian harbors by Royal Air Force bombers.

2. Bad weather will not interrupt the bombing of England to any appreciable extent, and this has almost paralyzed London, making parts of the city a near shambles.

Little by little the R. A. F. has had to back up. At first British airmen were keeping German planes to their side of the Channel. Next they met the Nazis on the southern shore of England. Then they retreated inland so that now they do not engage Nazi bombers until they are about half way between London and the sea.

Here the Royal Air Force is holding, but in order to do it, they have had to bring most of their planes down from the north, leaving that part of England relatively unguarded.

So far, the Royal Air Force has not been licked. They are still doing a good job against overwhelming numbers. However, it remains a very strong probability, almost a certainty, that if Hitler wanted to risk sacrificing his entire air force he could knock out the R. A. F. It would be terribly costly, but he could probably do it.

Factories vs. Factories.

MEANWHILE British bombers have been inflicting terrific punishment on Nazi docks, ships and munitions plants. One American motor manufacturer whose plant in Germany had been taken over by the Nazis, recently reported to Washington officials that he was no longer interested in trying to get the plant back. It had been too heavily damaged by British bombs.

However, it is important to remember that Hitler's arms factories not only are widely scattered throughout Germany, but also in Czechoslovakia and Austria. These areas are located outside the range of British bombers—unless they are able to borrow some of our Flying Fortresses.

Boiling it down, the British probably have suffered much more than the Nazis, because British plants are not decentralized; also because the continuous air raids over London interrupt factory production. If 10,000 workers respond to an air raid signal and go into dug-outs for an hour, then there is a loss of 10,000 man-hours of work.

This is one of the biggest factors hampering British airplane production.

Diplomat Morgenthau.

SHORTLY before Count de St. Quentin retired as French ambassador to the United States, he asked for an appointment with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for the purpose of discussing French funds frozen in the United States. These were taken over by the United States when Germany invaded France, and the ambassador wanted to have some of them released in order to pay the expenses of French consuls in this country.

Morgenthau knew in advance what the ambassador wanted, so when he arrived, Morgenthau immediately began to talk about the weather, the heat of the Washington summer, where the ambassador had spent his vacation.

Then he switched to the problem of caring for the roses, grass around the treasury department, also talked about his fruit farm up the Hudson, then about a lot of other things.

By this time, the ambassador's time had elapsed, and he had not put in a word. He departed without even mentioning his request for funds.

Afterward, Secretary Morgenthau phoned the state department, reported what had happened during the call. "Don't you think I'm a pretty good diplomat?" he said.

Note—Morgenthau already has allowed France funds to operate the embassy here plus various other offices, but the Bank of France, now completely controlled by the Nazis, is doing its best to lay hands upon the $1,500,000,000 in gold which France has frozen in the United States.

Garner Stays Home.

ONE thing which amazed, later griped Vice President Garner's colleagues on Capitol Hill was his failure to attend the funeral of his old friend Speaker Bankhead.

Not only did the president himself drop all his work to make the funeral trip to Jasper, but Henry Wallace canceled three campaign speaking engagements to fly from Des Moines to Alabama; and six members of the cabinet, together with Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and Under Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal, cancelled important engagements to attend the last rites of the much-loved Speaker of the House.

The vice president, who had known Bankhead longer than perhaps any of them, and who served side by side with him in the house of representatives for about a quarter of a century, remained on his goat farm in Texas.

Note—The El Paso Herald Post, commenting on Garner's absence from Washington at this Congress, recently said:

"John Garner has not been aiding in the struggle to make the nation secure—the nation which in the last 40 years has honored him with high position and paid him and his wife-secretary $500,000 for their services. . . . He has sulked among his goats. It is not of record, however, that John Garner has refused the salary to which he is entitled but has not earned.

"For 40 years the taxpayers have trained John Garner in the ways of legislation and of governing, and today in one of the greatest crisis in history, he loafs. Texas is humiliated."

"America's Sweetheart."

ONE incident during Wendell Willkie's Hollywood visit was a secret between him and Mary Pickford. "America's Sweetheart" invited him to "Pickfair", her vast and orante mansion, but the GOP standard-bearer courteously but firmly declined.

He was too smart to get mixed up in the movie colony's hectic social feuds. Miss Pickford is an enthusiastic Willkie rooter. She visited him at Colorado Springs. But there are many other votes in Hollywood, and Willkie was not stepping on any toes if he could help it.

Instead of following the trail of nobility to the Pickford mansion, he met the heterogeneous folks of the film industry, from stars to sweeps, in a big gathering at the Hollywood Bowl. They assembled there to hear his speech, delivered at the Coliseum, via loudspeakers, and later he came to the bowl and greeted them personally.

Note—Willkie has been astute in his public contacts. In Chicago he carefully avoided the Ford plant, although the anti-union motor magnate had visited him at Rushville, and at Kansas City he sidestepped former Senator Jim Reed, violent anti-New Dealer and National Labor Board foe.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD SHIP (3rd day)—We are into the tropics now and the flying fish are becoming a little jittery — probably because they are being chased by dolphins. These dolphins are pure liquid motion. They leap like gentlemen riders from a sea only faintly troubled by the summer trades. Off the starboard a rainbow is trying to hook one of its ends into the sea. We had a shower a few minutes ago but it passed without even disturbing the sun. Come to think of it, there aren't enough clouds down here for a sun to hide under. We do have a few miniatures, but they are mostly puffs of cotton, put there no doubt by the directors of the Porto Rican steamship line to emphasize the blue of the water and the sky.

Our deck steward is the spittin' image of the late Huey Long, and our bar steward is so much like Charles Laughton that every time he comes in I expect him to start reciting Lincoln's Gettysburg address. I asked "Huey" if anybody ever told him he looked like the late senator, and he replied, "Senor, every trip, a hundred times."

I DID not win the ship's pool today. It takes seven turns around the deck to make a mile. We have a number of Spanish priests aboard en route to the West Indies, and also six nuns, but the nuns are American. The Spanish fathers do not speak English. We also have a doctor from Albany who has been invited to recommend an anti-tuberculosis program for the Dominican Republic, and a concert pianist from Boston who is along merely for the ride. So you can see that we have a mixed company.

The news has just leaked out that one of the dining room waiters is a survivor of the Morro Castle disaster and he is now being pointed out as one of the real celebrities on the ship. This shows you how easy it is to hobnob with greatness unawares. I picked this information up in the swimming pool this morning from Ruth Bishop, of Coatesville, Pa., who won $8.50 at bingo last night, and Mary Gena Young, of Bethlehem, Pa.

THE purser tells me we have three corpses aboard, which accounts no doubt for the storm we barely missed the first two days out. At least that is what the more superstitious of the passengers claim. The peculiar thing about these corpses is that all are men, and all three, by a strange coincidence, died of a broken neck.

The captain of this ship, which by the way, is the S. S. Borinquen, is going to take his vacation after this run and visit his son, a plebe at Annapolis. One of the passengers asked him if he ever got seasick, and he said, No, he didn't, but sometimes he got pretty sick of the sea. He has been a captain on this run for 31 years.

Tomorrow, around noon, we hit San Juan. I'm leaving ship there. I want to see some of those cock fights, and chew some of that sugar cane. I want to rest in the shade of a papaya tree, and let the surf sing me to sleep. I want to stroll through streets that were centuries old before St. Augustine, Fla., was even a trading post. That's San Juan (St. John), the oldest city in the western hemisphere. It is the only spot in the new world where Columbus actually set foot.

Daily Bible Thought

The hour cometh and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.—John 4:23.

A Farmer's Diary

My Own Back Yard

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A PLACE I am disappointed with is my own back yard. Last spring my hopes were high for a beauty spot there. In truth, at appleblossom time, without help from me, the place did not lack loveliness. Today as I stood on the back step and looked about, how different from what might have been was what I saw!

The first thing that caught my eye was a wedge of watermelon rind afloat in the pond. An improvised mast and sail betrayed that childish hands had made a boat of it. The gaping hole washed out of the rock garden by late summer rains compelled attention. I scowled. Thick Spanish needles grew along the edge. Only a few sickly clumps of iris and oriental grass remained of its original planting. The slope was rock, barren, with spots where chickens had wallowed.

Where are the portulaca and sweet alyssum and hardy fragrant petunias that I planned on? Where is the rustic bridge across the outlet of the pond? Where is the culvert I intended to make—big enough to carry off any amount of wild spring water? The summer is gone and my back yard has been neglected.

I walked down to the pond's edge. The sun was warm. The day was of that hazy glorious kind that only autumn brings. Deliberately I turned my back upon the washout and the barren rocks. I fished the watermelon rind out of the pond and threw it far away. Two boards and a piece of old newspaper I picked up and put upon the ashes of the rubbish heap. Then I came back to the rocky ledge where the water runs out, and sat in the sun.

Pond lilies bloomed, their waxy petals spread in groups, pink, yellow, white. Tall swamp grass and wild sunflowers rimmed the pond, their bending clusters of gold and green reflected back from the water. The center of the pool was dark with algae.

Nan, the white goat, lay as close to the earth as she could get, in a freshly scraped hollow of the bank, and basked, sleepily. A gorgeous Monarch butterfly lit and swung on a cluster of golden-rod. Farther down the stream, tall purple weeds gave the swamp a vivid color. In spite of myself, a lump came into my throat.

Warm gold and purple, unasked for the untended. Clear trickling water. A hazy sheen upon the rolling hills, America. Democracy. Free schools and churches. The right to hope; the right to vote; the right to own a home where children play.

Luxuriously, I stretched on the grass in my own back yard and knew that God is good. And in my mind's eye, I saw again the trees I'll plant, the bridge I'll build, the flowers I'll grow—another year.

RAF AND NAZI PLANES TRADE BITTER BLOWS

British Fight Off New Raids on London, Claim Success In Berlin Attack.

bombed were the Rahnsdorf railway station, several freight yards, including that at Grunewald, in southwest Berlin, the electric power station in Wilmersdorf, in south Berlin, factories in the western suburbs of Charlottenburg and Spandau, including the Brandenburg motor works, and gas plants at Dantziger Strasse and Neukoln, in southeast Berlin.

Almost continuous attacks also were carried out by relays of bombers against the channel ports in German hands.

The British press association, commenting on the morning attacks on London, said the Germans "twice turned tail for home before a merciless barrage of AA fire and the relentless pursuit of British fighters."

In the first raid, the press association said, "a number of Nazi machines were seen in difficulties and one was reported to have crashed into the sea at Whitstable."

A strong force of Hurricanes engaged a second wave of raiders "scurrying for home" in a rearguard action, the press association added, and a "large splash near Calais is thought to indicate that at least one Nazi plane failed to get home."

Associated Press correspondents along the coast reported seeing German and British planes throughout the night and in the early daylight hours in ceaseless patrols over the invasion "danger zone."

During the hours of darkness relays of German planes streaked across for the 17th consecutive dusk-to-dawn attack on London and raids in the southeast northwest, the Midlands and Wales.

Waves of British planes swept the other way, returning to the aerial founding of German-held coast bases with bombings which jarred watchers on the Kent cliffs and lit the distant horizon like heat lightning.

Striking through intense German anti-aircraft fire, the Royal Air Force hammered the French coast from Dunkerque to Boulogne. It was the second successive overnight bombing of the bases where massed ships and barges have been seen and German troops have been reported.

Germans Attack Historic Old Towns

BERLIN — (AP) — The famous medieval town of Cambridge, England, seat of the university which King George VI attended, has been bombed by Nazi airmen in retaliation, the high command said today, for a British attack on old Heidelberg.

As the German air force struck back at London with "rolling attacks" in reprisal for the bombing of Berlin during the night, the high command issued a communique listing the places attacked yesterday when bombs were dropped on Cambridge.

Big fires, the high command said, were seen by German fliers in the Millwall and India docks area of London, at Vauxhall and at Hyde Park. Millwall and India docks lie at the big loop of the Thames. Vauxhall and Hyde Park are close to the heart of London.

German pilots reported many new fires raging in London, and added that the "old fires" near the India docks were growing.

Flames were started at Liverpool also last night, the high command asserted. It minimized the military effectiveness of the RAF attack on Berlin, insisting that only apartment houses and residential districts were hit.

The death toll from the radio stood today at 11 dead, 14 injured. Hits by explosive and incendiary bombs. Many inflammable phosphorus leaflets were dropped, authorities said.

Informed sources said Nazi warplanes began attacking England early in the morning, roaring across the channel in relays towards London and other objectives in southern England.

Returning pilots reported they had reached their goals and rained bombs on assigned targets.

The nocturnal British attack on Berlin, during which bombs hurtled down on the city and its outskirts, gave the German capital its longest air raid alarm of the war—three hours and 45 minutes.

Despite fierce anti-aircraft fire, a government communique acknowledged that a number of British warplanes succeeded in passing the outer Berlin defenses to drop bombs on the northern and eastern suburbs but said there was "no military damage."

Authorized spokesmen said only a small group of bombers managed to get even as far as the capital outskirts in their sally from the British Isles.

(The British air ministry said Berlin was "heavily bombed" by "strong forces" which attacked "important military objectives.")

Some damage was reported to apartment houses and numerous fires were set, although most of them were reported extinguished without difficulty.

A blaze visible from the central district glowed in the Moabit area of northwest Berlin—a region of factories and workers' homes. The government charged that "hits far from any military and war-essential objective are renewed proof that British fliers are intentionally attacking residential sections."

Watched As Auto Headed Into Crash With School Bus

"After passing my car, the other machine cut sharply to the left, missing the front end of my car, and rammed the bus. I jumped out and ran up to the car. I saw one of the women lying partly out of the car door and I knew she was hurt, maybe seriously.

"I ran to a farm house nearby and telephoned for an ambulance and the state highway patrol, and then went back to help get the injured woman out of the car.

"The boys and girls were pretty badly scared and were screaming and trying to jump out of the bus. The driver did a good job of quieting them and helping them out of the bus in orderly fashion."

The woman who had fallen partly out of the car was Mrs Bowman who suffered the loss of her right eye when she was thrown into the windshield of the car. Riding with her in the front seat was Mrs. Walter Shillito, 23, also of Mansfield, while in the rear seat were Mrs. Shillito's five-year-old daughter and Mrs. Bowman's four-month-old son. The younger child was not hurt, while the girl had minor cuts on her arm. Mrs Shillito suffered multiple cuts and bruises and a broken nose.

"I'll admit I was pretty jittery before it happened and for quite a while afterward," Almy said.

3 HURT AS CAR HITS SCHOOL BUS

26 Children Unhurt After Car Hits Vehicle Discharging Pupils on 30-S.

sheriffs said the car driven by Mrs Bowman apparently swerved past another automobile which had stopped behind the bus and rammed into the back of the standing bus. The accident occurred shortly before 4 p m

The bus owned by John Newcomer, Mansfield, was being operated by O. O Orewiler 61, of R D 3, Mansfield Both vehicles were headed east

"I had just stopped at the intersection of Maple Lane road to let three pupils out when I looked in my rear-view mirror and saw the car swaying in the road back of the bus," Orewiler related

"There was nothing I could do, and in an instant the car crashed into the bus, giving us an awful bump. I think everything would have been all right if the driver (Mrs. Bowman) hadn't jammed on the brakes and tried to stop."

State highway patrolmen said brakes on the car were defective probably causing the car to sway when Mrs. Bowman attempted to stop

H W. Pickens, proprietor of the Safety Service Center, 66 North Diamond street, said today that he had checked the Bowman car yesterday morning and found the brakes defective. He said they were not properly adjusted and would be dangerous when traveling at a high rate of speed He said he told Bowman the brakes were defective and the latter said he would fix them himself.

Orewiler said he had left the Springfield township schools at Ontario shortly before the accident with 51 pupils in the bus He had made 11 stops to discharge 25 of them.

The car hit the bus with such force that the right side of the automobile was wedged beneath the bus It required several minutes to separate the two vehicles and remove Mrs. Shillito who was riding on the right. Mrs Bowman was thrown partly out of the car on the left, officers said

Badly frightened by the crash, children in the bus screamed and tried to jump out of the rear emergency door. Orewiler, however, quieted them and helped them out of the bus.

Three pupils who live on the Maple Lane road had just left the rear seat on the side of the crash to walk up the aisle to get off when the car rammed the bus. Two of them were thrown to the floor and the other fell back into the seat. The seat was moved forward about two inches by the impact.

Leaving the bus at the intersection were Dorothy McGaw, 13, an eighth grade pupil; Jack Prion, 6, and Robert Stewart, 6, both first graders.

"The bus was stopped and I was walking toward the front when the car hit," Robert said. "I was knocked down to the floor."

The McGaw girl said she was thrown backward into the seat again by the impact.

One of the first parents to reach the scene of the accident was Mrs. John Prion, Maple Lane road, mother of Jack, one of the first graders who was leaving the bus. The McGaw girl, whose mother is dead, lives with the Prions.

"I heard the crash," Mrs. Prion said, "and when I saw it was the school bus I knew my children were on it, and I was at the accident scene about two minutes later."

Eugene Almy, 123 Rae avenue, who had stopped behind the bus, saw the crash from about 30 feet away. He said Mrs. Bowman's car swerved around his car on the wrong side and then cut sharply to the left between his car and the bus, before crashing into the bus

The right front side of the automobile was almost sheared off as it passed through under the corner of the bus. Although one of the dual rear tires on the bus was punctured, the vehicle was moved under its own power. Damage to it was not believed heavy.

REDS, 2 OTHER PARTIES RULED OFF BALLOT

Communists, Socialists And Socialist-Labor Groups Denied Places.

tions were disqualified, leaving the party 3,200 names short of the required 24,129.

However, the Communists came closer to making their required number than either of the other two parties. The Socialists, with about 9,000 names invalidated, had 16,336 left, while petitions of the Socialist-Labor group contained only 13,120 valid signatures after the check-up.

George C. Balliet, president of the Richland county board of elections, said today that the 16 names of persons who claimed they signed the petitions under misrepresentation, were taken off the list in the office of the secretary of state.

In a number of counties in the state prosecutors are making investigation of the securing of names to petitions by misrepresenting the facts. Prosecutor Glenn Marriott, Mansfield, said some time ago that he "would look into the matter" but to date has done nothing.

Five independent state candidates were also ruled off the ballot for an insufficient number of nomination petition signatures today. They were:

Carleton Reiser, Napoleon, for secretary of state, short term

Kent H. Meyers, Cleveland, Jan. 2 term of the state supreme court.

Thomas J Jones, Martins Ferry, Alfred C. Jones, Garfield Heights, and Frank E Wilke, Cleveland, all for the short term of the state supreme court.

With the ruling off the ballot of Reiser's name, Neffner was left as the only candidate to fill the unexpired term of the late Secretary of State Earl Griffith.

Edward C. Turner, of Columbus, former Republican attorney general, and Dennis F. Dunlavy, Ashtabula county, a Democratic member of the state utilities commission, will oppose each other in the race to determine a successor to the late Supreme Court Judge George S. Meyers.

Judge Arthur Day, who broke with the Republican party after being defeated two years ago for the party's U. S. senatorial nomination, qualified to place his name on the non-partisan judicial ticket as a candidate for re-election.

There he will be opposed by former Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, of Cincinnati, and Judge MacBride, Columbus attorney. Bettman and MacBride were nominated at the May primaries by the Republicans and Democrats, respectively.

Two Armed Bandits Get $25 In Shelby Robbery.

SHELBY—Two youthful armed bandits held up the Hamburger Inn here at 8:55 p. m yesterday and escaped with approximately $25 in cash.

The robbers entered the Inn and asked Philip Barnet, proprietor, for a brand of cigarets which the Inn did not carry. When Barnet told them he didn't have that brand the men brandished revolvers and one of them said, "this is a stick-up."

They ordered Barnet to empty the cash register and as soon as they took the money rushed out the door into a waiting car bearing Michigan license, according to witnesses. The automobile sped north on Route 61. A description of the bandits was broadcast to the state patrol police by Shelby police.

REPORT BRITISH FORCE REPULSED

ish "cannon shot for cannon shot" and said all landing attempts would meet fierce resistance.

It was indicated the British operations were aimed at trying to surround the city by land and cut it off from the interior. This move was viewed here as a prelude to an attempt to wrest the entire colony from the Petain regime.

The heavy fog which frequently shrouds the coast at this time of year was said to be hampering movements of British troopships.

Aboard the transports was a mixed force of British and French troops lead by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who has been condemned to death as a traitor by the Vichy government for continuing the war against Germany as the self-styled leader of "all free Frenchmen".

Government advices said the British squadron consisted of two battleships, four cruisers, "several" destroyers and six transports.

The bombardment began at 2:15 p m yesterday, after Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa, had refused General de Gaulle's order to surrender.

Estimate 30 Planes Attack at Intervals

LA LINEA, Spain (At The Gibraltar Border)—(AP)—French air forces estimated at 30 planes, apparently based in French Morocco, were seen attacking Britain's fortress of Gibraltar at 10-minute intervals for an hour and a half today, presumably in retaliation for the British navy's shelling of Dakar.

Dense columns of black smoke rose from the famous rock, leading observers at this Spanish town to believe that gasoline depots had been hit

Claims Unarmed Men Killed In Harbor

LONDON —(AP)— Headquarters of Gen Charles De Gaulle, leader of "Free Frenchmen" attacking Dakar, French West Africa, charged today that Dakar naval authorities killed several of his men when, unarmed and flying the French colors and a white flag, they tried to make a peaceful landing.

De Gaulle then withdrew his troops and ships, not wanting to be a party to a fight between Frenchmen, the communique said.

The British ministry of information declared, at the same time, that "there is no truth in reports emanating from Vichy that any British landing at or near Dakar has been attempted."

(French reports at Vichy said the British had failed in several attempts to land at Dakar, where there had been casualties on both sides and that a British cruiser and French submarine had been hit by shells).

Naval Minister Reveals Reprisals

VICHY, France — (AP) — Naval Minister Admiral Jean Darlan announced late today that France had lashed out with reprisals for the British attack on Dakar, Senegal, after repulsing British landing attempts and damaging "the aggressor warships."
